—Mrs. Robert Goggin entertained
Thursday afternoon with a progressive Military Euchre. The handsome new home on Houston avenue was beautifully decorated with growing plants, great bouquets of pinks and white chrysanthemums and every conceivable decorative emblematic of war and army. The ices were most beautiful and appropriate, being frozen in shapes of flags, eagles and cannon. The entertainment was given in honor of the young married member of the family, Mrs. L. C. Moore, of Detroit, Mich., who, with her handsome son, will be the guest of the household for several weeks.

Mrs. Goggin received in a graceful gown of white veiling and lace and was assisted by the guest of honor, who was very attractive in pure white crepe. Mrs.
E. C. Moore, of Detroit, was also in the receiving line and was gowned in purple crepe de chine.

A delightful luncheon closed the afternoon's pleasure.

A Nice Bouquet.

The Lexington Leader, of yesterday, says: Frank B. Carr, successor to John P. Moore, as local general agent for the L. & N. railroad company, was born and reared in Paris, Ky., where he is exceedingly popular in business circles, with which he had most to do, and would have preferred remaining there were he a man of his own will in business relations. He began the railroad business when a mere boy in January, 1877, at Paris, as telegraph messenger for the old Kentucky Central railroad, afterward purchased by the L. & N. system, and has been with the latter road since the purchase named.
He was appointed telegraph operator, afterward agent at Paris. From Paris he was transferred for a year to Carlisle as agent; thence to Livingston in the same capacity; thence to Richmond and back to Paris, where he has ever since held the agency for the L. & N. Mr. Carr is an Elk, a "jolly good fellow," and will make himself popular with Lexington people.

SHAMEFUL, BUT TRUE.—The Maysville Ludger. Republican, says:

If the coming Legislature takes the necessary steps to disfranchise the negro—and it is a foregone conclusion that it will—it will be a heavy blow to a large number of industrious vote-sellers in this city. The unpurchasable negroes in Maysville could be loaded into a single street car, and those who pay poll tax could travel in a wheel-barrow. This is shameful; but it's true.

Two hundred school girls in Baltimore assaulted a classmate accused of being a "tattle-tale," scratched her face until the blood ran, pulled out her hair, tore her hat to pieces, kicked her books into the gutter, and then tried to tear off her clothing. Evidently the graceful art of football is in need of revision if the college youth is not to be outdistanced by the gentler sex.

VOLCANOES.

Outbreak of Subterranean Fires Can Be Counted on to Occur with Considerable Regularity.

Mount Vesuvius was active again last month, after a long period of internal rumblings, but its activity was neither strange nor unexpected. Although not in a state of continual eruption, this volcano pours forth lava with unusual frequency. Its most disastrous eruption was rivaled last year by the explosion of Mont Pelee in Martinique. Within twelve months Stromboli, in Sicily, Santa Maria in Guatemala; Colima in Mexico, and less known volcanoes in Samoa and other parts of the world have been active.

The outbreak of the subterranean fires, says the Youth's Companion, can be counted on to occur with considerable regularity. Year in and year out the newspapers will contain just about so many reports of volcanic life; just as, one century with another, the number of disasters from flood and storm will average the same, shipwrecks will recur with unchanging frequency, and crimes of violence will repeat themselves with substantial uniformity.

To the student of statistics the round of repetition seems to go on unceasingly, this year repeating last year, and so on back to the beginning. But as Howells has well said in one of his wise and philosophic poems, the round is spiral and each year finds the human family a little higher in its struggle upward, even though the phenomena of inanimate nature may persist with apparently unvarying regularity.

TEMPLE IN JAPAN.

Some Are Sacred to the Spirits of Dead Children—Visited Mostly by Bereaved Mothers.

There are many peculiar temples throughout Japan, those sacred to the spirits of dead children being, perhaps, as odd as any. These temples are mostly visited by sad mothers. One of these at Kioto, says an exchange, contains hundreds of small wooden Buddhas, arranged on shelves, sloping back, row upon row, and covered with the baby clothes of infants who have died under a year old. At Osaka is another of these children's temples. Here, too, are hung everywhere children's clothes offered by the mothers.

A priest sitting on a mat gives the bereaved mother, for a fee, a shaving of wood with the name of the dead child written on it. This she takes to another shrine, where is a pool of water issuing from the mouth of a colossal stone tortoise. The pool is full of these shavings. They are cast into it just where the water pours in from the tortoise's mouth, and happy the woman whose child gets well soaked at once. It is believed that this will insure the child an easy passage to Heaven, as the water carries the names to Buddha, who at once calls for them as he reads them.

Buying a Home in Denmark.
Any sober, reliable farm laborer in Denmark, who has saved one-tenth the mortgage value of the little farm he covets—this value not to exceed $1,100—can buy the land by borrowing the other nine-tenths from a government fund. He gives a mortgage on which he pays three per cent. After five years he also pays one per cent. additional toward wiping out half his debt. When this half has been paid he pays 3½ per cent. on the remainder until he owns the land. A cooperative dairy buys his cream and returns to him the skimmed milk for his hogs. The latter go to the cooperative bacon factory, and the local branch of a cooperative egg exporting house receives his eggs.

The Grape Cure.
The grape cure at Wiesbaden has for a long time been an important feature of the autumn season at that famous health resort. The worth of the cure lies in the high per cent. of sugar in the fruit, grapes being from 24 to 50 per cent. sugar, with important elements of acid and water.

MIRACLE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Oroya Railroad in Peru Cost $311,594 Per Mile—Obstacles That Had to Be Overcome.

The two Americans who constructed the Oroya road, Messrs. Meiggs and Thorndike, were considered nearly crazy when they proposed it, says the World's Work.

It was necessary to carry the road-bed for miles through galleries cut in the solid face of the rock, and the workmen engaged in cutting the galleries were in many cases lowered in cages from the cliffs above. More than 60 tunnels had to be cut in the course of construction, one the famous Galera tunnel, one and one-half miles in length, the highest engineering project of its kind on earth.

It is on this road that the signal achievement of constructing a lofty steel bridge connecting two tunnels was accomplished. In building this bridge, which spans a crevice 575 feet wide and hundreds of feet deep, it was necessary to lower all material from the top of the cliffs by wire cables. The whole stupendous task was made possible only by the liberal use of the "V switch" or "switchback." In one instance of the Peruvian railroad it was found necessary to construct a switchback in the side of the mountain, the train heading in on the lower level and backing out through an upper tunnel almost exactly above. The cost of the Oroya railroad, when completed, was $43,000,000, or $311,594 a mile, making it one of the most costly roads in the world.

PUZZLES THE WISEST MEN.

Why the Intestines Do Not Digest Themselves Is a Problem—Conclusions of One Scientist.

The digestive tube is filled with ferments capable of attacking, of destroying and of transforming the food with which they come in contact, but these ferments attack neither the walls of the intestines nor the parasites which often live in abundance on these walls, says Public Opinion. What causes this condition? The question has often been discussed and now the researches of M. E. Weinland on the tryptic ferment again bring the matter forward.

In 1891 Frenzel stated that he believed the protection enjoyed by the intestines was due to the antiferments which are secreted by the living tissues. An experiment of M. Weinland along this line is very interesting. A mixture was made of fibrine and of trypsin or of pepsin and the whole was placed to digest after a little juice of ascaris was added. No digestion occurred. The experiment may be prolonged indefinitely, but the ferment does not attack the fibrine when the anti-ferment is present. Thus it is not the living tissues which resist digestion, but the juices which impregnate them and which they secrete.

NEW IDEAS ON SUNSTROKE.

After-Dinner Work in Stagnant Heat Produces Exhaustion—Women Are the Worst Sufferers.

"Stagnant indoor heat is more oppressive than outdoor heat," writes Dr. F. L. Oswald, in the Home Science Magazine. "Indoor warmth, intensified by stove fires, often approaches the horrors of the Calcutta black hole, or the swelter den of Dante's Inferno; and to that combination of discomforts civilized men doom their sisters and mothers. In midsummer the sunstroke wards of New England hospitals are crowded with male patients, who often have worked only on the shady side of the streets, and with a still larger number of women, who cannot plead guilty to outdoor imprudence of any kind. They have been overcome by the heat, and in nine out of ten cases by the afternoon heat of ill ventilated kitchens and washrooms, dining-rooms and nurseries, by vitiated air cooperating with the exhausting effects of a high temperature, at a time when the resisting ability of the system was impaired by the exigencies of digestion. In other words, sunstrokes and all their preliminary symptoms are the effects of hard after-dinner work in warm weather."

NO MORE BLACK DIAMONDS.

Supply Still Exists, But Electrically Manufactured Article Has Entirely Replaced Them.

The trade in carbonado, or Brazilian black diamonds, which, so late as five years ago, was worth nearly $4,000,000 a year, is at present practically dead.

These stones, first discovered in 1843, are a kind of black, opaque and imperfectly crystallized diamond, found only in Brazil. They are less dense than the white diamond, but actually harder, and were found of immense value for mounting in the steel crowns of rock-boring drills.

It was the electric furnace, worked by the tremendous water power of Niagara, which put an end to the carbonado trade, says Stray Stories. A mixture of sand, coke, sawdust and salt melted together in this amazing heat resulted in the formation of masses of beautiful crystals, ranging from blood-red to pale blue.

These have been named carborundum. They are almost as hard as the diamond, and indestructible in acids to which the diamond yields. They cost less than a quarter of carbonado, and so have displaced it.

Little Platinum Left.

The $2,142,207 worth of platinum extracted in the Gorotlagodatski district of Russia last year is practically the world's supply of that metal.

Curious Item in War Budget.
According to an official report, the British war office spent last year $115 on powder puffs.

FORTUNE HUNTERS.

Marriages of Many American Girls of Wealth to Titled Foreigners Turn Out Unfavorably.

The marriage of many American girls of wealth to titled foreigners is just now receiving more than usual attention. The disclosures regarding the post-wedding experience of some of the brides who have left their homes and native land to become the wives of real or bogus noblemen of Europe are in many cases humiliating and distressing.

Margaret Van Etten in a cabled article from Vienna gives a few of the names of American women who have come to grief by such foreign alliances. There are thirteen on her list, and the number might be increased by a thorough study of the newspaper files. Every woman mentioned married a title, and most, if not all of them, were subjects of extensive newspaper notice when their weddings occurred. Their triumph was in the blaze of publicity; their humiliation and suffering have been chiefly in private. In every case cited these women have either secured divorces or are living apart from their husbands.

Some of the daughters of Americans of wealth, says the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, have contracted happy marriages with foreigners and by their subsequent lives have reflected honor upon their native land in their new homes. There is no reason why an English nobleman should not fall in love with a rich American girl and marry her, precisely as he might have loved and married a poor English girl. It is not such cases which are open to criticism, but the numerous alliances which are clearly the product of fortune-hunting negotiators.

THE MODERN INDIAN.

Charges White Man an Admission Fee if He Wants to See Moki Snake Dance.

The Indians are rapidly "catching on" to the ways of the white man. The Moki snake dance for 1903 at Wopli, Arizona, on the Santa Fe, is a good example of how the modern commercial spirit is spreading. Until now visitors have been permitted to witness this spectacle without money and without price, the Indians being content with what they could pick up from the camera flashes for posing, and from the tourists generally for baskets, pottery and blankets. This year each visitor was charged a dollar, with a sliding scale of special favors like going down into the kiva where the snakes are kept.

The dance was just as weird as ever and the spectators more than got the worth of their money; but the old-timers sadly viewed the change and predict that the dance will be discontinued before many seasons have passed. You would better go to the next one, or it may be too late to see this most remarkable pagan ceremony.

The Santa Fe has on exhibition in its Chicago office a notable painting by Cross of a snake dancer, based on a sketch made by him while in Mokiland in 1858. The difference between then and to-day is quite evident in minor details of costume; but the main features are much the same.

ALL DUE TO PHOTOGRAPHY.

How the Art Has Very Curiously Worked Injury to the Trade in Commercial Fertilizers.

The idea that the spread of photography could do severe injury to the trade in commercial fertilizers, and especially to the conversion of raw phosphate into plant food, seems at first sight absurd.

Yet so it is, and in this way, says Stray Stories. Phosphates and bones, to be made available as soil improvers, must be treated with sulphuric acid. Now, sulphuric acid will dissolve most metals as easily as water does sugar. Platinum is almost the only metal upon which it has no effect.

So, in spite of their great cost, manufacturers have generally employed retorts made of a platinum alloy for the concentration of sulphuric acid. These retorts used to be made in Paris and cost $8,500 to $13,000 apiece.

To-day such a thing as a platinum retort would cost literally a fortune, for platinum, owing to the introduction of the platinotype process in photography, has gone up from about five dollars an ounce to the present price of $20 an ounce. It is indeed nearly as costly as gold.

BOX OFFICE SUPERSTITION.

Why the Cross-Eyed Man Got Four Good Seats at the Theater for Nothing.

A newspaper man was the second in line at the box office of one of the popular theaters the other evening on the opening night, says the New York Times.

"Oh, that's all right. There's no charge at all for those seats."

The man looked surprised, thanked the ticket manipulator, and went on. Then the newspaper man had his turn, and he said:

"Please satisfy impertinent curiosity and tell me why you wouldn't take that man's money."

"Well," said the treasurer, "I expect you didn't notice that that man was cross-eyed. If I had sold him the first tickets, we wouldn't have had a bit of luck through the whole engagement."

Life in Hot Springs.

The hot springs that contain living bacteria are much below boiling point in temperature, but Mr. J. A. of Dublin, reports having observed eggs of a certain mite (Tyroglyphus) that survived boiling for minutes.

What Black Mike Saw

By W. W. HINES

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

BECAUSE he was surly, the men called him "Black Mike" Riordan. Yet those who knew him best swore his heart was one of the kindest.

Whatever the verdict of others, it is convincing enough proof that he had his good side, in that Kittle Donoughue loved him better than all the world. They were to have been married just before Lent, and Black Mike wore his scowl no more. Kittle was never strong and a cold just snuffed her life out, so Black Mike became blacker than ever before.

Some would have tried to comfort him, but his fireman, Dan Meagher, who knew him better than any one else, said:

"Leave him be. He likes it best so."

And after a period of moping, Black Mike, with a blacker scowl than ever, came back to work on the Central division. There had never been but one love in his life, that for Kittle Donoughue, who was dead, but there was a sincere liking for young Dan Meagher, who had been his fireman, and for engine 126, on which he had pulled the throttle.

With a silent hand-clasp Meagher welcomed him back, and he could feel that No. 126 was glad again to feel the touch of his hand at the throttle. So he climbed up on the right side of the engine and the Cannon Ball express pulled slowly out of the brilliantly lighted station, with its first stop 98 miles away, and 12 minutes of time to be made up in the worst storm and the blackest night of the year.

Rain came in sheets, driving before the heavy gusts of wind and beating against the glass sides of the cab as though it would drive them in. Even in the yards it took sharp watching to make out the signal lights, but there was time to be made up, and even engineers have to take chances of the safety of their train in such an event. Schedule time is a sacred thing in the eyes of the men of the Central division.

On the whole, Black Mike was grateful to the storm. There was a wild tumult in it that struck a responsive note in his heart, where pain was eating like a live, mad thing, gnawing and rending. The Cannon Ball express has the right of way over everything, and only accidents can detain her.

The dozing operator at Mertonville was aroused as the Cannon Ball swept by, and walked to his instrument to report her as passed.

"Mi! Mi! Mi!" his station call, came over the wire, and when he signified that he was on hand, came the message from the chief train dispatcher:

"Flag express all hazards. Bridge down."

"Express passed before message received. Trying to report her when you cut in on wire," he answered.

There was no other station between Mertonville and the bridge over Benson river, so the chief dispatcher had done all in his power to prevent the impending catastrophe. Immediately upon receipt of a wire from the operator at Ordway, on the further side of the Benson river, he had wired to Mertonville in the vain attempt to stop the express. The dispatch from Ordway read:

"Track walker reports bridge down. Cannot get flag man across."

With quick, sharp orders, the dispatcher had a special made up to carry doctors and nurses to the scene of the accident he now regarded as inevitable. They were ready to start in an hour, and a wrecking train was only a few moments behind them.

Picturing the track in his own mind, the dispatcher could see no escape for the express. There is a sharp curve and a heavy cut just before the approach to the bridge, and, with orders to make up lost time, Black Mike would be running at the utmost speed of which his engine was capable.

It was the fault of no one. Everyone had done his duty—but it is a horrible thing to sit impotently in a chair and feel that over a hundred people are approaching their death.

Darkness and storm around them, the beat of the rain against the windows of the cab drowning even the noise of the engine, Black Mike and Dan were both trying to keep a sharp look out ahead of them.

For a little distance the headlight half penetrated the rain and darkness, which closed in black and impenetrable a hundred feet away.

Black Mike is not on his seat. He is standing on the swaying floor of the cab; one hand on the throttle, the other on the air brake, and the reverse lever resting in the crook of his right arm.

In the intervals of throwing in coal, Dan climbed to his seat on the left of the cab and pressed his face against the glass.

Neither can hope to make out a danger in time to stop the engine, but there is an undefinable fear in the hearts of both. It is the schooling of engineer and fireman to take things on trust, but to keep on the alert. The Cannon Ball has the right of way, and there is nothing to fear except some accident to the track.

Of a sudden, Meagher looks across to see Black Mike with his face pressed against the glass. It is not the position of the engineer that arrests and fixes his attention, but it is the expression on his face. The face is as white as a sheet through the grime of coal and perspiration, and his eyes are blazing with a light that seems perilously akin to madness.

"See, lad! Look!" says Black Mike in a hoarse, unnatural voice.

But from his own side of the cab, the fireman can make out nothing save clouds of rain which drive across the path of light in front of the locomotive.

"I see nothing, Mike," says Meagher.

"Just look ahead, lad, moving with us, the shadow on the track. Look, lad, look, and for God's sake tell me what it is!"

"Rain drops on the glass of the headlight, Mike; that is all."

"Nay, nay, lad. Look! It beckons us to stop. By the Mother of God, 'tis the wraith of Kittle Donoughue."

Releasing his hold upon the throttle, Black Mike throws the reverse lever over as far as it will go, and tugs at the air brake with all his strength. It is all done with one motion and, despite her tremendous weight and momentum, the express comes to a halt within a few yards. The jar breaks the glass in the cab, throws the fireman to the floor, and shakes up every one in the train.

"IT BECKONS US TO STOP."

Trembling as though from a chill, they carry Black Mike to one of the coaches and endeavor to make him swallow stimulants. To gratify what they think is a whim, they send a brakeman on ahead with a lantern, and discover that they have come to a stop within a hundred yards of the foaming Benson river, and that of the bridge there is nothing left but the pillars.

"'Twas Kittle, who wanted to save the passengers and to give me warning," said Black Mike, and in this belief he persisted. He would not take out another engine, and died within a week of heart disease.

"The engineer of an express train is particularly liable to the attacks of heart disease," said the company's doctor.

But Dan Meagher, who has an engine of his own now, never passes the spot where the Cannon Ball was brought to so sudden a halt without crossing himself, unostentatiously and in all reverence.

COPPER WITH A HISTORY.

Cent That Was Used to Determine the Name of the Metropolis of Oregon.

F. W. Pettygrove, son of F. W. Pettygrove, one of the founders of Portland and the man who named the city, has in his possession the copper cent with which his father won the right to select the name. He is a commercial traveler for a San Francisco house and naturally sets great store by this cent, which he has shown to many here on his visits to this city, says the Portland Oregonian. Some of his friends have besought him to turn this cent over to the Oregon Historical society to be preserved, but he has not been able to make up his mind to do this. George H. Himes, secretary of the society, has been advised to wrestle with Mr. Pettygrove, and it is not unlikely that he may succeed in securing this historical coin. Mr. Pettygrove has also in his possession the Bible used on the occasion of the first sermon ever preached in Portland, which with the cent was presented to him by his father as a keepsake.

It was in the summer of 1845 that A. L. Lovejoy and F. W. Pettygrove, who owned the claim on which Portland was located, employed Thomas A. Brown to survey their property and lay it off into streets, blocks and lots, and when he had completed the plat the proprietors undertook to choose a name for the newly born city. Mr. Lovejoy desired that it be called Boston in honor of the capital of his native state. Mr. Pettygrove contended that Portland was more appropriate, as it was at the head of navigation and the port where would land all the freight intended for the valley of the Willamette and all the southern produce of the territory. In order to decide the question it was proposed by Mr. Pettygrove to toss a copper cent, which he had brought with him as a souvenir of his eastern home. This was agreed to by Mr. Lovejoy. The cent was tossed and, Mr. Pettygrove proving the winner, Portland was adopted as the name of the embryo city.

FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS.

"The Henderson Route"—Always First

The traveling public will be pleased to learn of the latest innovation in the way of comfort in travel for its patrons which is now being offered by that most popular railroad, the "Henderson Route," which road has been rightly termed the "Kentuckian's Official Route to the West and Southwest."

It has just been announced from the general office of the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railway that they now have in service on their night trains between Louisville and St. Louis, Free Reclining Chair Cars, which have just been received from the shops and are a revelation in the car builder's art.

The cars are strictly up-to-date, first-class "palaces of travel" on wheels, and this is only one of the many surprises which are promised the public for the World's Fair travel by the Henderson Route.

Among other advantages offered in these highly finished cars, a few of the most important points only are mentioned:

They are solidly vestibled and are furnished with sixty-four reclining chairs, which are upholstered in beautiful green plush, in addition to smoking and toilet rooms, the smoking rooms being finished throughout in leather. They are also fitted up with triple trucks, which feature will do away with the jerk, jar and strain incident to travel in the ordinary railway coach, and insures a smooth, comfortable ride. This should prove more than a popular feature in train service to the traveling public, and you can only suggest that in traveling you "get the Henderson Route" habit.

CHOLERA CURE

FOR HOGS AND POULTRY.

Farmers, you need no longer fear to raise and feed Hogs. We not only claim to cure Cholera, but we guarantee to prevent any such disease from breaking out among your Hogs or Poultry, if our remedy is used as directed. It is also fine for Brood Sows before farrowing, being a good blood medicine, which places them in a healthy condition. You cannot afford to be without this remedy if you expect to raise and feed Hogs, as you will more than make the price of the medicine in the extra gain in your hogs, and then you can rest assured they will have no disease. If they do we will refund the money. Write for testimonials.

THE FAIR!

Grand Holiday Opening
Friday, Nov. 27th.

Sensible, far-seeing people begin their Christmas Shopping early so as to avoid the great crowds and secure the first pick of the Holiday Goods. It's hard to get just what you want when the stores are thronged with eager buyers, and harder still for any store to satisfy the exacting demands made upon it. We therefore recommend early purchases as likely to be the most satisfactory from every point of view.

Remember—Friday,
November 27th.

THE HUNTER'S MONTH.

Loads of Large Game Being Shipped to the Cities—Friendly Cameras Protect Wild Life.

For a great part of the country the hunting season has opened. In a little while one will begin to see in the papers figures setting forth the amount of game shipped from each station on certain railroads which reach the big woods.

To sensitive persons, says the Youth's Companion, the numbers are appalling, and the sights in the baggage cars would be still more repugnant. The carcasses of deer and of an occasional moose are piled one above another almost to the roof, and among them are many does and fawns. Yet before the passage of adequate game laws the conditions were worse. Deer were shipped by the schooner load from Maine to Boston, and birds by the barrel. There are still too many—far too many—killed, but the number is lessening.

Nature study in the schools and the manufacture of good cameras, which can be sold at a low price, have done much to protect the lives of animals. Those stories of the woods which give wild animals the attributes and feelings of human beings may be, doubtless, poor science, but they are not bad morals. They do at least foster sympathy and encourage an altruistic imagination. To know the woodchuck intimately robs one of the desire to make a target of him, and a stump or an empty can does duty instead. The camera gratifies that love of the chase which is inherent in healthy young boys and men, and fosters it without the pain of killing.

OLD PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

Anglo-Saxon Kings Founded Many Before Norman Invasion of England—Books Were Costly Then.

Though it is the popular idea that public libraries are of modern origin, there is proof that the Anglo-Saxon kings of England were disposed to erect them, and works were brought from Ireland, where sciences had been much earlier cultivated than in Great Britain. But the invasion of the Normans, says the Chicago Daily News, stopped the spread of libraries and the first in England after the conquest was established at Oxford, in Durham (now Trinity) college, in the thirteenth century by Richard de Bury, who purchased from 80 to 40 volumes of the abbot of St. Alban for 50 pounds weight of silver. Before that time books were kept in chests and not in a room styled a library. At the end of the seventeenth century there were only six public libraries in Great Britain. The first circulating library was founded by Allan Ramsay in 1725, whence he diffused plays and works of fiction among the people of Edinburgh. So successful were Ramsay's efforts, that it is said that within 70 years nearly every town and large village possessed a library. The first in London was started by Botho, a bookseller, in 1740. Birmingham obtained its first circulating library in 1751. The next step was the free library, Manchester possessing the first in 1850, being quickly followed by Liverpool, Birmingham and other large towns.

AMBITIOUS DUCK.

Rhode Island Fowl Makes a Bid for Fame by Laying Eggs That Are Black.

Another freak in the egg-laying line is just announced, and while the particular bird who is responsible for it does not allow her fame to rest on fecundity, like Mrs. McNally's hen, the variety of the eggs that she lays is something new to these parts, says the Providence Journal. This particular bird is a duck, a black duck, and she lays black eggs, a freak of nature that has never been encountered before by the duck raisers of Rhode Island.

It is an ordinary sized duck's egg and is a deep drab in color. The color is mottled in some places, and the only light spot on the egg is at the small end, and there it is somewhat white. This egg is not a freak with the particular duck, for it is said that she has never laid any other kind of egg, and that she would be much surprised if she ever laid a white one.

The egg was brought in by John H. Montgomery, a relative of Mr. Young, and he is authority for the statement that the meat in it is as good as in a white egg.

Cold in the Upper Air.

The sending up of self-registering instruments upon kites at the Blue Hill observatory, near Boston, has shown that a passenger during an excursion into the upper air would need a variety of clothing. If it chanced to be a normal summer day on the ground, with the temperature at 72 degrees F., and the breeze blowing freshly at 20 miles an hour, he would need to take his furs and mittens, for by the time he had reached an elevation of 11,000 feet the thermometer would register nearly 40 degrees lower and the wind would be blowing a hurricane.

Italian Immigrants.

In 30 years 1,391,076 Italians have come to this country. This immigration has a very peculiar character. Until 1890 the percentage of women was less than 15, but now it has increased to 39. This indicates that the immigration has a marked tendency to become permanent.

Built Like a Bird.

The lizard-like pterodactyl, which had membranous wings, with a spread of 20 feet, is the pattern for the airplane which Prof. Langley, of the Smithsonian Institution, has built and recently tested unsatisfactorily.

Education in Mexico.

The peon child of Mexico may now pass from his letters to the highest diploma entirely at government expense, and the government hopes shortly to make education compulsory.

WELLS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Large Areas in That Country Are Without Surface Water—Government Boring Plant Kept Busy.

Over large areas in South Africa the surface is streamless, and hence without a visible water supply. By boring to no great depth, though, the desired article can almost invariably be found, says the New York Tribune. An engineer in the public works department of the Cape government says that in the last five years the authorities have made 2,000 boreholes at an average cost of £50 each, and at least three-fourths of these have produced water in satisfactory quantities, the daily output from such wells now being about 28,000,000 gallons. The Transvaal government has also appointed an expert to study local possibilities.

These facts are naturally of interest to manufacturers of well-boring plants, who are already doing a considerable business with South Africa, and who may expect to see that business multiplied many times over during the next few years. During 1898, 1899 and 1900 applications for the use of Cape government drills averaged about 500 annually, and at present, so largely have these applications increased, no fewer than half a hundred drills are in constant operation, and the government is said to have booked sufficient work to keep the existing plant fully occupied for at least three years, and further applications will therefore have to be met by large increases of plant, and by extensive private enterprise in the same direction.

COINS WHICH HAD THEIR DAY.

Gold Pieces Which Are Rare and Curious—Some Which Collectors Are Anxious to Obtain.

Recent mention of the disappearance of the $250 gold piece from circulation and the premium this coin commands as a curio has set many to rummaging in old pocketbooks and the bottoms of cash boxes and drawers in search of odd or out-of-date coins, says the Portland Oregonian. Some have found a $250 piece, but not many. The $3 piece, once quite common, but always a sort of curiosity, is oftener found, and many have specimens of the little gold coins representing 25 cents and 50 cents, which were not minted by the government and probably have not so much gold in them as they represent. They used to pass as coin, but were never in general circulation, being so easily lost that they soon became scarce. One of the handsomest coins seen is a $10 gold piece bearing the mint stamp of 1799. It is larger than the present $10 piece. The owner has it hung in a band and wears it as a charm on his watch chain. The owner says he refused an offer of $150 for this relic. The old octagonal $50 pieces were quite common in California in early days, when gold dust was largely used as a circulating medium. They were made of pure gold, and while they had not the elegant finish of the gold coins minted by the government in these days, many still remember them as the handsomest coin they ever saw. Many people now would consider them handsome on account of the $50 in them.

A NOBLE RED MAN.

Crazy Snake, Leader of Katoowah Indians, Wants Uncle Sam to Enforce Old Treaty.

Chitto Harjo, known as Crazy Snake, leader of the Katoowah band of Creek Indians, has announced that he will go to Washington to have an interview with President Roosevelt, says the Kansas City Journal. Crazy Snake has the distinction of being the last Indian in the United States rebellious enough for Uncle Sam to order several companies of regulars out to keep him within bounds. This happened two years ago, when he declared war against the government, and since that time he has served a term in prison for rebellion. When the council of war was held near Tahlequah last week each tribe named a delegate to go with Crazy Snake to Washington. They are adherents of the old treaty of 1832, which provided that the Indians should hold their lands in common, according to the old tribal laws, as long as "water and grass grows." The old warrior and the delegates named to accompany him cannot speak English, and an interpreter will be necessary in order for them to make their wishes known to the president. They will ask him to enforce the treaty of 1832.

THE "SPEED MANIA."

Cyclists and Automobilists Said to Develop Characteristics Foreign to Them When in Normal State.

The conviction is gaining ground among scientific men that indulgence in extraordinary speeds of transition voluntarily controlled breeds in the human species a form of disease capable of development to the degree of delirium, says a London exchange. The disease is generally referred to as the speed craze or speed mania. By a rather strange coincidence a discussion on this subject took place at the Societe de Hypnologie et de Psychologie, in Paris, only a few days before the tragic death of Zborowski. One of the speakers, Dr. Hachet-Souplet, maintained that persons in position to increase their speed of transition at will are simply carried away by the consciousness thereof. They have no longer control of themselves; they are intoxicated. They then develop characteristics which are foreign to them when in the normal state—boastfulness, combativeness, crabbedness, hatred, mischievousness and violence. These characteristics vary in form and degree, but may attain a maximum in the cyclist and automobilist.

Bullet's Swift Flight.

A shell from a 12-inch gun makes its flight of nine miles in 42 seconds.

WOMEN LAWYERS IN FRANCE.

Admission of Ladies to Bar Has Had Good Results on Manners of Opposing Advocates.

Since the Paris bar has been open to women, not a few members of the fair sex have taken advantage of the new privilege accorded to them to plead at the Palais de Justice, says an exchange.

The pioneer in this direction was Mlle. Chauvin, whose debut as "advocate" excited a great deal of attention, and whose presence in the cap and gown made a great sensation at the Palais. Her debut, moreover, had the effect of setting the fashion among Parisiennes of wearing the white cravat of the French lawyers. Since Mlle. Chauvin's debut in 1899 curiosity has died out to a great extent, and no bad effects of the law have been noticed. It is even possible that, if the good results could have been anticipated, the law would have passed the chambers by a unanimous vote, instead of by 319 to 174. As a rule, women lawyers have had men as their opponents at the bar, and one could imagine himself in a sort of judicial salon, if compliments and gallant speeches were the criterion.

But the other day two women lawyers found themselves antagonists in a case. It was funny to see the embarrassment of the judges, for each lawyer did her best to captivate the bench. Unhappily the bench could not get out of the scrape by awarding the victory to both sides, so the chivalrous judges took refuge under a well-known formula and reserved their decision for a fortnight.

SCOTLAND'S GREAT CANAL.

Undertaking Will Save Hundreds of Miles and Cost $50,000,000—Big Engineering Feat.

As was recently stated in a cable dispatch, the plans for the construction of a ship canal between the Firth of Forth, on the east of Scotland, across to the River Clyde, on the west, have been definitely arranged. The canal will cost $50,000,000, but powerful support is expected from the British government. One of the great engineering features of the scheme will be the carrying of the canal near the Loch Lomond end. Frequent passing places will be made.

An indication of the saving in distance that would be effected by the canal, says an exchange, will be gained from the following figures: From the Clyde to ports on the east coast of Scotland, northeast of England, and northwest of Europe the distance saved would be from 529 miles to 238 miles. From the Firth of Forth to ports on the west coast of Scotland, northwest of England, Ireland, America and the Mediterranean the distance saved would be from 487 to 141 miles. From Tyne ports to the St. Lawrence river the distance saved would be 150 miles. From the west of Britain and northeast of Ireland to middle western ports of the continent the distance saved would be from 377 to 93 miles.

RECORD-BREAKING RUN.

Engineer Was Offered Fifty Dollars a Minute for Every Minute Gained Over the Schedule.

There is a little story connected with the record-breaking run of the Lowe special over the Santa Fe, Chicago to Los Angeles, in less than 53 hours, which is not generally known.

It is related that Mr. Lowe offered the engineer who hauled the train from San Bernardino to Los Angeles—the sum of $50 a minute for every minute gained over the schedule. Engineer Warburton turned the wheels at a 50-second clip for each mile to Pasadena, but had to slow down in the suburbs of Los Angeles. He pulled into La Grande station, Los Angeles, just 62 minutes after leaving San Bernardino, gaining nine minutes on the whirlwind schedule and thereby earning $450 extra pin money.

The Santa Fe passenger department will soon publish a pamphlet giving full details of the swift flight of the Lowe special, which in several instances exceeded 90 miles an hour. An average of nearly 45 miles an hour was maintained, in the face of having to cross four high ranges of the Rockies, and with little previous selection of engines or crews.

MENACE OF THE FOREST.

Continued Will Dry Up if Present Destructive Processes Continue—Experience of Old World.

The climatic history of the old world will repeat itself in America, says the National Magazine. If forest destruction, at its present rate of recklessness, should continue much longer, our continent will have to dry up. So will an orator who should venture to urge that fact upon a boodle legislature, in this era of lumber trusts. But the fact remains, and its significance may be inferred from the experience of the Mediterranean coast lands, where thousands of god gardens have been turned into Gehennas of wretchedness and desolation. By tree destruction alone a territory of 4,500,000 square miles has been withdrawn from the habitable area of our planet. The physical history of the eastern hemisphere is the history of a desert that originated somewhere near the cradle of the Caucasian race—in Bactria, perhaps, and, spreading westward and southward, has lighted the Edens of three continents like a devouring fire and is now scorching the west coast of Africa and sending its warning sand clouds far out to seaward.

Sugar in France.

The price of sugar in France has recently been reduced by less than half, and the consumption has been nearly doubled. Formerly sugar was a luxury which rarely reached the homes of many workmen, but now its use is much more common.

Wanted.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if there is any person who has used Green's August Flower, for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Trouble that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual constiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents.

Caution!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boeché's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents.—W. T. Brooks.

Low One-Way Settlers' Rates to the Northwest and California.

From September 15 until November 30, 1903, the Burlington makes very low one-way colonist rates to California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana. The reduction is from 25 to 40 per cent. from the regular rates.

The Way to Go.

The Burlington, with its strong main lines and free chair cars, best reaches the West and Northwest via Denver, Billings or St. Paul.

"The Burlington-Northern Pacific Express" is the great daily through train with chair cars and tourist sleepers via Billings, Montana, to Puget Sound and intermediate points.

To California.

The Burlington's weekly personally conducted California excursions in through tourist sleepers are just the thing for coast tourists and settlers. The route is Denver, Scenic Colorado and Salt Lake.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

These are run the first and third Tuesdays of each month at approximately half rates for the round trip. It will be a pleasure for us to give you an accurate and informative reply to any inquiries.

THE New York World

Thrice-a-Week Edition.
Read Wherever the English Language is Spoken.

The Thrice-a-Week World was a brilliant success in the beginning and has steadily grown ever since. Time is test of all things, and has set its seal of approval on the Thrice-a-Week World, which is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and wherever there are people who can read our mother tongue.

This paper for the coming winter and the year 1903, will make its news service, if possible, more extensive than ever. All events of importance, no matter where they happen, are reported accurately and promptly.

The subscriber for only one dollar a year, gets three papers every week and more general reading than most great dailies can furnish at five or six times the price.

The Thrice-a-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its news columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages truthful accounts of all the great political campaigns.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-a-Week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market report and other features of interest.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled new-paper and The BOURBON NEWS together one year for $2.75.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

SECRET OF RADIUM HEAT.

Lord Kelvin Suggests It May Be Supplied by Ethereal Waves—Illustrates His Theory.

What Prof. C. V. Boys termed "the miracle of radium" has naturally received much attention in London scientific circles. At a recent meeting of the science branch of the British association Lord Kelvin, in a paper which he read, made an interesting suggestion in connection with its perpetual emission of heat at, according to M. Curie's calculation, a rate of about 90 centigrade calories per gramme per hour.

He said that if the emission of heat at this rate went on for 10,000 hours there would be as much heat as would raise the temperature of 900,000 grammes of water one degree centigrade. It seemed utterly impossible to Lord Kelvin that this would come from the store of energy lost out of a gramme of radium in 10,000 hours.

It seemed, therefore, absolutely certain that the energy must somehow be supplied from without. He suggested that ethereal waves might in some way supply energy to radium while it was emitting heat to matter around it. Lord Kelvin illustrated his theory by the following comparison: Suppose a piece of white and a piece of black cloth, hermetically sealed in similar glass cases, were submerged in similar glass vessels of water and exposed to the sun. The water in the vessel containing the black cloth would be kept very sensibly warmer than that containing the white cloth.

Here the thermal energy was communicated to the black cloth by waves of sunlight and was given out as thermometric heat to the water in the glass around it.

Thus through the water there was actually an energy traveling inward in virtue of the waves of light and outward through the same space in virtue of thermal conduction.

Lord Kelvin suggested that experiments be made comparing the heat emission from radium wholly surrounded with thick lead with that found in the surroundings heretofore used.

WHO FIRED FIRST SHOT?

Gunpowder Has Been in Use for Centuries—Known to Hindoos Before Birth of Christ.

There is abundant evidence that the origin of gunpowder and artillery goes far back into the dim ages of the past.

The Hindoo code, compiled long before the Christian era, says Stray Stories, prohibited the making of war with cannon and guns or any kind of firearms. Quintus Curtius met with fire weapons in Asia, and Philostratus says that Alexander's conquests were arrested by the use of gunpowder.

It is also written that those wise men who lived in the cities of the Ganges "overthrew their enemies with tempests and thunderbolts shot from the walls." Julius Africanus mentions shooting-powder in the year 275. It was used in the siege of Constantinople in 668, by the Arabs in 690, at Thessalonica in 904, at the siege of Belgrade in 1073, by the Greeks in naval battle in 1008, by the Arabs against the Iberians in 1147, and at Toulouse in 1218.

It appears to have been generally known throughout civilized Europe in 1300, and soon thereafter it made its way into England, where it was manufactured during the reign of Elizabeth; and we learn that few arms were possessed by the English in 1310, and that they were used at the battle of Crecy in 1346.

MAY DESERT LONELY ISLAND.

Inhabitants of St. Kilda, of Hebrides Group, Said to Be Planning Migration to South Africa.

That lonely island, St. Kilda, one of the loneliest of the Hebrides, is likely to be left lonelier still in the near future. Its inhabitants, it is reported, propose deserting the island and emigrating to South Africa. This is not much to be wondered at, for St. Kilda is one of the most inaccessible islands in the world—only four times a year, once a month in June, July, August and September, does a steamer call from Glasgow. For the rest of the year the inhabitants are entirely cut off from the outer world. Their special mail is in a tin box, into which they put letters, toss it into the sea and trust to Providence and favorable winds to carry it to the shores of the outer Hebrides. The population of the island has gradually dwindled to 75. The last time there was a great exodus was when 36 islanders left in a search for gold in Australia.

Sugar and Coffee for Soldiers.

The British government has decided to be more liberal with its soldiers and sailors in giving them sugar and coffee. Among the experts in such matters the belief has been gaining ground for years that moderate allowances of sweet stuff and of the Arabian berry are beneficial to strong, healthy men who are called upon to perform heavy tasks and endure hardships, while the entire medical profession appears to be inclined to the theory that weak and feeble men, women and children should, as a rule, refuse such indulgences.

Bounty for White Labor.

In the interest of making Australia "a white man's country," a government bounty is paid for sugar grown by white labor. Of the last year's sugar crop of 100,000 tons seven-tenths was produced by Kanaka black labor.

Potatoes Versus Education.

Pennsylvania farmers refuse to pay more than $20 per month for school-teachers, but are offering $2 a day for men to dig potatoes.

Funds Belonging to Other Banks.

The 45 national banks of New York city hold from $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 deposits of other banks.

MODERN ROAD MAKING.

None But Trained Engineers Should Be Employed for Performing This Important Work.

The old aphorism about pinching at the spigot and losing at the bung hole quite as often applies to rural practices as to city ways, indeed, it sometimes finds more frequent illustration in the country where cash has a relatively higher value than labor, and where theoretical knowledge is lightly esteemed. This bad policy is more often applied in the improvement or management of country roads than in almost any other line of work. If an organized system of drainage is undertaken the necessity for the services of a competent engineer is generally admitted, but roads are supposed to be different. As a rule only the surface is considered. That reduces the question to a choice between applications of dirt, gravel or crushed stone. There are usually a good many rival candidates for the office of road commissioner. No theoretical knowledge of mechanical engineering or of road-making is required of these candidates, and the citizens usually consider themselves fortunate if the position is held by a fairly intelligent man of energy and good intentions. He has to learn as he goes along, however, and the township generally pays dearly for his education. The "awful" country roads of the country have been the subject of a great deal of unfavorable criticism on the part of foreign visitors, and the loss sustained through the difficulty and sometimes suspension of traffic by reason thereof is enormous. We have long supposed this was one of the irremedial drawbacks of a new country, as land values are not high enough to justify heavier taxation for expensive turnpikes. However, engineers have been turning their attention to the matter, and now tell us that good roads and dirt roads are not incompatible; that good road making is all a question of knowing how, and that the money expended for road improvements which are not directed by skill and intelligence is money thrown away. It is time we outgrew this notion that a public office is a private snap, time that we outgrow our petty economies in public affairs. If the villages and townships of the United States, during the past 50 years had paid their money to experts who gave them honest advice and skilled services, men who would have coordinated their efforts, it is altogether probable we would have had a very different and a much better system of roads to-day. It is not too late to institute reforms now, and right here is a chance for our agricultural colleges to do some good work. The agricultural college, of course, cannot attempt to fit a man for rural occupation, but it can at least give him an intelligent knowledge of the problems involved in road-making and to that extent make him a good citizen, not likely to submit tamely to the waste of money by ignorant roadmasters. The engineering departments of our state colleges are graduating men well qualified to do work of this kind, and it would be economy on the part of municipalities to employ them rather than local office-seekers who are ever on the lookout for jobs of this kind.—Farmers' Review.

PERFECT CORN MARKER.

Useful Implement That Can Be Made by Any Bright Man from an Old Cultivator.

The illustration shows a corn marker without a fault. All cultivators are not alike, as some have straight tongues, and some have a seat attached, but they can all be used by simply removing the wheels and shovel beams.

No. 1 shows hole where clevis attaches whiffletrees. This brings the draft on sled instead of frame; d shows a plank spiked on behind, making a place for driver to stand, thus leaving a clear vision between his horses, and straight ahead; c shows where wheel spindles are secured to marker plank with yoke, secured on under side of plank by burrs. At b is an upright pin. This is to receive b of No. 2. This pole is just 8 feet long, and f is a runner made rounding at each end. This is 2 feet long, 8 inches wide, and 1 inch thick. It is made of hard wood, and is wedge shaped on the bottom; g is a wire attached with a ring on it. To the ring is attached a good stout string, and to this string is fastened a common snap h. Place b No. 2 on b No. 1, snap h on same ring, and your highest ideal of a perfect corn marker will be realized. Use e for handles when turning at the end of field.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Girls as Berry Pickers.

J. L. Herbst, a strawberry grower of Wisconsin, tells about his methods of berry picking. He says that one of his girl pickers picked 153 quarts in one day. The ordinary amount of a day's picking with him is 80 quarts per picker in a day of five hours. Mr. Herbst was asked why he preferred girls to boys as berry pickers and replied: "We prefer girls for picking because they will stand the picking much better; they are not so talkative; they do not get tired and want to go, and as a rule they are more business than boys."—Farmers' Review.

A TALK ABOUT ONIONS.

Profit of the Crop Depends Upon Sound Seed and Rapid Operations in Harvesting.

If we have had the right seed, a good season, and if our crop was sown just right for thickness there should be but few scallions and the whole crop should ripen at the same time. About September 1 it should be ready for the harvest. By all means leave them until you can pull the tops off with the fingers without much effort. The tools necessary for the harvest in the old way are the hands only. The tools used by me are a wheel hoe with a circular cutter, fine toothed wooden rake, plenty of crates, two strong men and for a plat of one acre about ten boys.

CRATE FOR HANDLING ONIONS.

With these appliances and help I should expect to harvest in one day a crop of from 700 to 1,000 bushels.

My crates are made from one-half inch lumber, of these dimensions: 18 inches long, 18 inches high and 12 inches through, inside measurements. They are made thus: the ends which are two strips 2 1/2 inches wide are laid 12 inches apart on iron plates. Take cross strips 12 inches long and any width handy from 1 1/2 to 4 inches, have nails just long enough to go through and clinch well, and nail your strips on, leaving a space between each strip of one inch, except the top space which make 1 1/2 inches, for here is where you will grip the crate in handling. Nail well.

Nail on for side and bottom pieces any narrow width you choose, leaving the same spaces on sides as recommended for the ends. The bottom spaces should be about three-fourths of an inch. This completes your crate, as shown in the cut, and if it has been properly put together and well nailed you will have a firm and inflexible crate which will last for years and will stand a lot of banging. Mine have been in use for ten years and are in fairly good condition yet. They have been lent to my customers and have had lots of hard usage.

These crates are very useful not only in the onion harvest, but the handiest article you ever saw for harvesting potatoes, apples, root crops of all kinds, cabbage, and in fact useful at all times and all seasons. They hold exactly 1 1/2 bushels even full. They weigh empty from seven to ten pounds; when full of onions, potatoes or apples from 85 to 100 pounds. Three of them put into a common market wagon endwise just fit the body.—John H. George in Orange Judd Farmer.

THE GARDEN IN SPRING.

Bonemeal is a good fertilizer for the sweet pea.

Spiraea Anthony Waterer is very valuable in the garden, flowering during the whole season.

If you have never grown salpiglossis, try it this season, and you will congratulate yourself on another valuable acquisition to the flower garden.

The new single peonies are attracting much admiration with their monstrous flowers, from 12 to 15 inches in diameter, with massive center of yellow golden anthers.

The more closely you keep the flowers of your sweet peas cut the more blossoms you will get. Tests at the Wisconsin station show that plants in subirrigated flower beds grew almost twice as tall as those watered on the surface.

Developing Peat Deposits.

The utilization of some of our extensive peat deposits is taking shape and many tracts of hitherto worthless land may prove highly valuable. A western capitalist is now buying machinery abroad to use in the manufacture of peat briquets in an extensive plant at Bismarck, N. D. It is estimated that 55,000 square miles of lignite underlies the Dakotas and Montana, while another wide belt stretches through the gulf states from Texas to Florida. The serious coal strike of the past winter is possibly not without its compensations.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Mites in the Hen House.

If there are mites in the hen-house, kill them at one fell swoop. Get ten cents' worth of carbolic acid, make a strong, hot soap suds, put half the acid in the sprinkling pot, pour in the hot suds and thoroughly sprinkle, throwing the solution high up on the walls. Do this in the morning and shut the fowls out during the day. Two days later clean out the house and use the rest of the acid in the same way. In this way in three days the number may be reduced from 10,000,000,000, or any other number, to 0.—Midland Farmer.

What MITCHELL Says

We are all creatures of the habit. Quite a lot of good people are in the habit of eating my famous Home-Made Candy.

I want you to get in the same habit, if you are not already so.

The candy I make is good to eat.

It is clean, pure and good for the health; and then it is cheap, when you consider the fine, rich qualities of the goods. Only 25c lb.

When you want the finest box of Bonbons you ever saw, just call at my place and get a box of Lyon's La Paraphite Creams. Honestly, I have never seen so fine goods at any price and we sell the goods on strict guarantee at 50c lb.

My famous "Oriental" creams are the finest 40c goods ever made. Now get the habit of coming to me for your candy, and you will be glad.

Yours Truly,

C. B. MITCHELL.

AMUSEMENTS.

—There is much to recommend in the performance of "The Little Christian," which will be given in this city shortly by Charles H. Clarke's excellent company, not the least of which is the fact that it was one of the most delightful performances and successes in Boston.

It was a production that was given the earnest personal attention of that wizard of stage craft, Mr. Clarke, for months, and it will be seen here with all the freshness and beauty of its Boston performance.

—John Griffith, the eminent young actor, appears at the Grand on Nov. 25th, in a grand electrical and spectacular production of "Macbeth." The supporting company is an excellent one, and the special scenery and effects are used exclusively by Mr. Griffith for this performance.

—The attraction at the Lexington Opera House for Thanksgiving day, matinee and night, will be one of extraordinary importance, that of Viola Allen, in "The Twelfth Night." Miss Allen, this season, is under her own management and has one of the most complete and magnificent Shakespearean productions ever seen in this country. Her company is an excellent one and in her new venture she has made the artistic success of her career.

The next Kentucky legislature will have a Democratic majority of seventy-six out of joint ballot. In the last assembly the Democratic majority was sixty. The next senate will have a membership made up of thirty-one Democrats and seven Republicans, and the House will have seventy-six Democrats and twenty-four Republicans.

ANOTHER shipment of dead soldiers will arrive from the Philippines about the middle of next month. There are only a hundred and sixty-three in this load. The war in the Philippines has been over a long time for the slaughter pen to supply such loads of dead as are shipped back every few weeks. Just recently a ship carrying 306 dead soldiers arrived from the Philippines.

Governor's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Governor Beckham has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

"No people on earth have more reason to be grateful to Almighty God for his benefactions and bounties than the citizens of this great republic. In less than a century and a half it has grown to be the most splendid nation the world ever saw. Beginning its existence under grievous difficulties, and struggling against powerful obstacles, it has placed itself in the forefront of all countries, and has taught the human race valuable lessons in the art of self-government, in progress, in development, in civilization and in the betterment of man's condition. Peace, plenty and prosperity have been given our people, and it is, therefore, a praiseworthy custom that national recognition and individual gratitude should be given to Him from whom those favors have come. In conformity to this custom, I appoint Thursday, Nov. 26, 1903, as a day of thanksgiving and rest throughout the Commonwealth of Kentucky, that our people, true to the spirit of this institution and thankful for their many blessings, may lay aside for the day their worldly cares and give praise to the great and good Author of all our happiness. Let Kentuckians praise Him not alone for the grandeur of our nation, but also for the success and prosperity of our own great commonwealth. Let us not in imitation of the pharisee and hypocrite thank Him that we are not like other people, but let us in humble gratitude to Him rejoice that our State is not surpassed by any in the Union, and that its people are as good, as brave, as generous and as patriotic as any on earth.

"In testimony thereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the commonwealth to be affixed. Done at Frankfort, this 13th day of November, 1903, and in the one hundred and twelfth year of the commonwealth.
